Bike lanes form barrier

► Ontario's first segregated bike lanes in a downtown core ► City removed some curbs for commercial buildings but ignored those in front of residential buildings, homeowners say

The Laurier Avenue segregated bike lanes are officially open, setting cyclists' minds at ease as they navigate through the downtown core.

Proponents of the pilot project cheered at a ribbon cutting yesterday, but not everyone was celebrating. A group of seniors and persons with disabilities at the event said the concrete barriers running along Laurier Avenue block the front entrance to their building on 556 Laurier Ave. W. The barriers are meant to prevent vehicles from crossing into cyclists' paths.

"It's a hassle to get out of the building," said Lucile McGregor, who lives in the building. "And there's been no consultation with the homeowners who live in that section."

McGregor cannot lift her legs over the barrier and says she has to walk down the steep hill on Percy Street to enter her building.

Mayor Jim Watson and councillors Mathieu Fleury and Marianne Wilkinson attended the ribbon-cutting ceremony yesterday in front of the Ottawa Public Library before cyclists tried out the new lanes. Watson said he is aware of the complaints and said the city is open to feedback from residents.

► Lucile McGregor says the concrete bike-lane barriers on Laurier Avenue West make it difficult for her and her neighbours with disabilities to access the front entrance to their building.

Looking at the bigger picture

Working with a handful of local high school students, Pontiac artist Marcio Melo put the finishing touches on a collaborative work yesterday at the Montcalme Gallery at Gatineau City Hall. The mural is one of about 100 Melo has created with Quebec students over the last 12 years as part of an arts program sponsored by the province's culture ministry. Melo says he enjoys helping students to express themselves through visual media. The mural and other works by Melo will be on display until Aug. 21 at the gallery. On the final day members of the public will be able to meet Melo and work on art of their own.

Local courts bucking trend

► Program called Justice on Target started in 2008 to cut down on number of days and court appearances by 30 per cent ► Attorney general says 'huge turnaround' observed

@METRONEWS.CA

It took Ottawa's courthouse longer on average to dispose of criminal cases in 2010 than it did a year before, despite a concerted effort across the province to cut wait times.

Ontario Attorney General Chris Bentley says the province's courts have seen an encouraging drop in processing times three years into a program to eliminate wasted resources, but Ottawa bucked the trend, seeing case-disposal times climb 28.6 per cent, from 217 days to 279 days on average for a case to be disposed of.

Stuart Konyer, vice-president of the Defence Counsel Association of Ottawa, said he was surprised at the increase, given the efforts of the local Justice on Target committee.

"I would say most of the routine cases are taking less time," he said.

Improvements have been made in some areas. Average disposal of homicide cases was more than halved in 2010, with an average disposal time of 317 days compared to the average 680 days that it took for cases that were disposed of in 2009.

"I think there's more and more complex investigations that lead to charges that are more complicated in nature and that just end up taking longer to litigate."

STUART KONYER,
VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE DEFENCE
COUNSEL ASSOCIATION OF OTTAWA

Attempted murder and sexual assault case-disposal times were also down, but robbery, thefts, possession of stolen property, mischief and failures to appear all took more court time.

Appearances in Kirkland Lake were down almost 45 per cent; in Kingston, 18 per cent; in Brampton, nearly 17 per cent; and in North York, 15 per cent.

A warning after Juba's jubilation

► South Sudan is expected to become the 193rd country recognized by the United Nations

A day after the jubilation of South Sudan's independence proclamation, the U.S. ambassador to the UN warned yesterday of a "real risk" that the north-south peace process could unravel unless outstanding issues such as oil and border demarcations are quickly resolved.

Celebrations rang out Saturday in the South Sudan capital of Juba, the first day of independence after decades of civil war between Sudan's north and south. Some two million people died in the most recent war, from 1983 to 2005.

Omar al-Bashir

► Two nations. Sudan President Omar al-Bashir, who is wanted for war crimes for his role in the conflict in Sudan's western region of Darfur, attended Saturday's ceremony and appealed for the two nations to work to "overcome the bitterness of the past."

Yesterday, the capital appeared hungover from its massive celebration, though small groups of people still sang and danced on street corners.

The new country's national anthem played from speakers and cellphones.

The joy of independence day temporarily overshadowed the ongoing hostilities between the northern army and southern-allied forces in the northern state of South Kordofan and other violence along the north-south border. The south and north have yet to agree on a demarcated border, and the issue of oil remains contentious. The south has most of the oil but it must move it through the north's pipes.

Activists postpone planned voyage to Gaza

LIONEL CIRONNEAU/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Pro-Palestinian activists protest yesterday in front of the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

Canadian activists trying to deliver aid to the blockaded Gaza Strip have decided to put off their voyage for now.

Organizers announced the decision Saturday after the Canadian ship, known as the Tahrir, had been prevented from leaving a port in Greece for several weeks.

Greece has banned vessels heading to the blockaded strip, citing safety concerns.

After inspections and administrative delays, the Canadian ship tried to leave for Gaza last Monday but was quickly turned back to shore by the Greek coast guard.

Organizer David Heap, who was aboard the Tahrir, said he's disappointed the ship wasn't able to bring aid to Gaza.

But the group succeeded in drawing attention to the conditions there, he said.

"Obviously some individuals are disappointed," he told The Canadian Press in a phone interview from Greece on Saturday.

"But we have had remarkable success ... in getting this issue into the spotlight."

Harper's take

- 1 The Harper government has remained critical of the flotilla.
- 2 Foreign Minister John Baird has called the mission "provocative" and "unhelpful."
- 3 He has also urged those wishing to deliver humanitarian goods to Gaza to do so through established channels such as the International Committee of the Red Cross/Red Crescent.
- 4 A similar flotilla last year ended in bloodshed, when nine people were killed and 45 were injured after Israeli soldiers boarded a Turkish ship.

World Food Program estimates that 10 million people need humanitarian aid

The head of the UN refugee agency said yesterday that drought-ridden Somalia is the "worst humanitarian disaster" in the world after meeting with refugees who endured unspeakable hardship to reach the world's largest refugee camp.

The Kenyan camp, Dadaab, is overflowing with tens of thousands of newly arrived refugees forced into the camp by the parched landscape in the region where Somalia, Ethiopia and Kenya meet.

Antonio Guterres, the head of UNHCR who visited Dadaab yesterday, appealed to the world to supply the "massive support" needed by thousands of refugees showing up at this camp every week.

Crammed Camps

Dadaab's three camps now host 382,000 refugees.

Arrivals from last year multiplied by six with Somali refugees desperate for food.

In Dadaab, Guterres spoke with a Somalia mother who lost three of her children during a 35-day walk to reach the camp.

"I became a bit insane after I lost them," said the mother, Muslima Aden. "I lost them in different times on my way."

Paper expires but scandal will not die

► Documents reportedly show News of the World executives knew more about phone hacking than they let on ► Murdoch's BSKyB bid imperilled

► The demise yesterday of Britain's News of the World tabloid does not end the questions surrounding Rupert Murdoch's media conglomerate, which has been hugely influential in British politics for years. Chief among them: What did Murdoch and his executives know about the actions of News of the World journalists?

Rupert Murdoch touched down in London yesterday to take charge of his media empire's phone-hacking crisis as his News of the World published its last edition.

But the scrapping of the 168-year-old tabloid has not tempered British anger over improprieties by journalists working for Murdoch, and his $19-billion US deal to take full control of satellite broadcaster British Sky Broadcasting remains in jeopardy.

The 80-year-old News Corp. CEO was seen reading the paper's last issue in a red Range Rover as he was driven to the east London offices of his U.K. newspaper division, News International. Later, at his London apartment, he met with News International's chief executive, Rebekah Brooks, who led News of the World when its reporters committed some of the most egregious ethical lapses.

Murdoch has publicly backed Brooks, who insists she had no knowledge of wrongdoing.

The drama has expanded at breakneck pace after allegations News of the World journalists paid police for information and hacked into the voicemails of young murder victims and the grieving families of dead soldiers. Three people have been arrested, including Conservative Prime Minister David Cameron's former communications chief Andy Coulson.

Cross words

► Some of the 200 journalists laid off from the News of the World appeared to sneak a message into the paper to Rebekah Brooks, who was editor-in-chief when the tabloid committed some of the worst ethical lapses, but has kept her job.

► Clues in one crossword puzzle included "Brook," "stink," "catastrophe" and "criminal enterprise."

► A second crossword contained the hints "string of recordings" and what many interpreted to be a direct jab at Brooks: "Woman stares wildly at calamity." The answer to that clue? "Disaster."

The Guardian newspaper reported yesterday that emails and memos from 2007 only recently turned over to police show News International was aware that phone hacking was more widespread than publicly acknowledged.

The scandal has the potential to bring down the coalition government. Yesterday, Nick Clegg, leader of the Liberal Democrats, threatened to split the coalition by siding with a Labour plan to block Murdoch's takeover of BSKyB.

Closing down the News of the World is seen by some as a desperate attempt to stem negative fallout from the hacking scandal and thus save Murdoch's bid for BSKyB.

Good works means good pay, for some

Some senior executives of Canadian charities earn salaries well into six figures, The Canadian Press has found.

The Canada Revenue Agency keeps a database of all the country's 85,000 registered charities, which must disclose how much their 10 highest-paid workers take home.

There are about a million charity workers in Canada. The CRA database shows more than 6,000 of them earned above $120,000 last year. A few hundred made more than $350,000, and another 12,000 workers made between $80,000 and $120,000.

It's likely the number of charity workers making six-figure salaries is greater, since organizations must disclose only their Top 10 earners.

However, charities defend the high pay by saying they have to pay top dollar for the brightest talent.

"If you really want those charities to have an impact and make a real difference, you're going to need to bring in the best people to work in that sector," said Marcel Lauziere of Imagine Canada, an advocacy group for Canadian charities.

POLLINATION FOR THE NATION

Worker bees need better deal: Biologist

They toil from the day they're born to the day they die — without pension plans, overtime pay or collective bargaining rights — to produce 87 per cent of North America's food supply.

Now Concordia University biologist Melanie McCavour wants recognition of the economic value of work done by bees and other crop-pollinating creatures.

Current estimates of the value of global annual agricultural production provided by natural crop-pollinators are in the neighbourhood of $250 billion. Assigning a monetary value to pollination is the first step in establishing a protocol for protecting pollinators. The logic goes that if people realize the labour value of worker bees, bats, birds, beetles and butterflies, policy-makers will develop better environmental and agricultural policies.

"We're asking for a study to determine the exact dollar amount of these pollinators to our economy," McCavour said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Crown patents of little use to landowners: Legal expert

The Ontario Landowners Association is urging landowners across the country to get copies of their Crown patents, a document issued by the Crown to the original owner of a piece of land. They are the latest tool being used by the group to combat government intrusions on private property.

Crown patents date back to the late 1700s, when the Britain transferred ownership to settlers. The OLA argues that the patents conferred ownership and a certain amount of rights to the original owner and anyone who would own the property in the future. They believe the patents void government legislation that might apply to their properties.

But Michael Lamb, a University of Western Ontario law professor, says the Crown technically owns all land in Canada, and this legal underpinning gives governments the right to assert some control over people's private property.

No deal yet on U.S. debt

U.S. congressional leaders must work out a debt deal within the next 10 days, President Barack Obama said yesterday as he convened a meeting with the eight top House and Senate leaders to fashion a deficit-reduction package for the next 10 years. Obama is pushing for a massive $4-trillion deal for reducing the deficit, while Speaker John Boehner and other Republicans prefer a smaller, $2 trillion plan. However, White House aides hinted yesterday that there is room for negotiation on a more modest approach. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOOSENING UP INSIDE THE FENCE

URBAN COMPASS

STEVE COLLINS
METRO OTTAWA

We don't enjoy a reputation for cutting loose here in the nation's rules factory.

But inside the fence at Bluesfest, Ottawa residents can be spotted shaking their asses like they don't give a damn what their assistant deputy minister might think. This is Ottawa with its hair down, or at least askew.

Dump thousands of us onto LeBreton Flats, add music, beer and hype, and it's hardly a recipe for mellow predictability, as demonstrated by opening night's somewhat disastrous crush at the gate and the ongoing human gridlock inside every night.

Those used to more regulated fun can be heard grumbling, but for Rich (Buck 65) Terfry, who is on the Hard Rock Café Stage tomorrow night at 9:30, a bit of festival chaos can also be a blessing.

"But inside the fence at Bluesfest, Ottawa residents can be spotted shaking their asses like they don't give a damn what their assistant deputy minister might think. This is Ottawa with its hair down, or at least askew."

"Backstage everyone's running around, they've got a 100 bands that they're trying to deal with and there's just like a panic," he said.

"I don't usually like that kind of energy in people at all. I usually work very hard to avoid it in my life, but then, funny enough, when I have it inflicted on me it usually results in a good show, which is ironic and completely backwards."

Those trying to keep this party nominally under control can also get it backwards. A friend of mine got carried away by the music the other night and actually danced a little, thereby catching the attention of security. Fortyish white guy dancing? Must be wasted. He wasn't, but after a short interrogation, he was escorted to the gate nonetheless.

Much of the time, however, music lovers are enjoying the intoxicant of their choice in whatever quantities they can handle. On opening night, I noted the first whiff of weed at 7:06 and first public beer barf at 9:44 (neither of them mine, thanks for asking).

Getting overserved takes some doing. Lengthy beer lines can morph into an elongated rabble rife with queue-jumping, some of it quite shameless and certainly beyond what would be tolerated back outside the fence in well-behaved Ottawa.

This petty anarchy might even be catching. Fighting for space on a bus out of LeBreton, we couldn't get anywhere near the front door, so we just slipped in the back door without paying. Don't tell my mom.

I'm sure our dull good sense will return next week, but for now, the only hard rule is: Summer is short — enjoy it.

Worth mentioning

DVUR KRALOVE, Czech Republic. She's the last northern white rhinoceros on view anywhere in Europe — but zookeepers are hoping lonely Nabire will find solace with a southern rhino 11 years her senior.

Another northern white — Nesari — died here in her sleep in May at age 39, further reducing the world's dwindling population of the critically endangered animal.

To help her cope with the loss of Nesari, keepers have decided to team up 27-year-old Nabire with a new partner, 38-year-old male Natal. Natal is a southern white, another rhino subspecies.

They were seen snuggling, lazing in the sun and eating and sleeping in their enclosure late last week.

With rhino horns considered a cure for everything from colds and fevers to high blood pressure, impotence and other ailments, poachers have decimated rhino populations in Africa and elsewhere.

The northern white rhino is the most highly endangered mega-vertebrate on Earth.

Count your silverware if he stops by

An 11-year-old boy in Brazil's northeastern city of Mossoro is drawing attention with his purportedly magnet-like qualities.

The Globo TV network has broadcast images of Paulo David Amorim demonstrating how forks, knives, scissors, cooking pans, cameras and other metal objects seem drawn to his body and remain stuck on his chest, stomach and back.

The boy's father told Globo that he decided to test his son after learning of a boy in Croatia with a similar ability. Junior Amorim said he was surprised to find "a fork and knife stuck to his body."

The youth said classmates call him "magnet boy."

Dr. Dix-Sept Rosado Sobrinho told Globo it is the first time in his 30-year career that he has seen a case like this.

Harry's spell lingers on

► An academic weighs in on the Potter cult

Thousands of Harry Potter fans are camped out at London's Trafalgar Square last week for a chance to see the premiere of the final Harry Potter movie. How did a book character manage to get such a following? Metro spoke with Michael Drout, Professor of English at Wheaton College and an expert on fantasy literature.

The Narnia series and the Lord of the Rings are excellent books. What makes people go gaga over Harry Potter?

Fantasy has become popular anyway, but the drawback with Tolkien and C.S. Lewis is that they take themselves too seriously. The fate of the universe is always at stake. J.K. Rowling took fantasy and inserted humour. She's also very good at creating characters. Her characters are not the cardboard characters you usually get in fantasy.

But why do people relate to Harry Potter?

He's literally a Cinderella story, and he taps into the idea that anyone can be the most important person in the universe. He's also moral compass of sorts: he's loyal and he knows what's right and wrong. And like all fantasy, the Harry Potter books put readers into a position where they can change the world. Also, Rowling doesn't get enough credit for being a decent writer. A typical fantasy writer invents three-four different languages and has 20-page explanations for everything. In Harry Potter readers learn how things work because Harry himself is learning. ◀ METRO

Hit series draws to a close

Take heart, fans of The Closer! A new season of 10 weekly episodes begins tonight at 9 p.m. EDT. Then the TNT network will air another five episodes this winter and six more next summer before the series comes to a close.

So there's plenty of The Closer ahead.

But for Kyra Sedgwick, who stars as LAPD Deputy Chief Brenda Leigh Johnson, the end is in her sights and on her mind. In December, she and The Closer wrap production.

And then? "I'll be home," replies Sedgwick.

"Knowing for the past seven years where you're going to be for six months—working on this show—makes those other six months precious, special, finite," she muses.

"The idea that I'll have the whole year not really knowing, waiting for the phone to ring, is going to be really different and hard. I know that intellectually, and I'm trying to prepare myself emotionally."

Sedgwick's colourful portrayal of Brenda, a crime-busting Atlanta transplant, won her an Emmy last year.

According to studio estimates yesterday, Transformers: Dark of the Moon held the No. 1 spot again with $47 million domestically in its second weekend. The Paramount Pictures blockbuster that stars Shia LaBeouf raised its total to $261 million, shooting past The Hangover Part II to become the year's biggest domestic hit. Debuting in second place with $28.1 million domestically was the Warner Bros. comedy Horrible Bosses, featuring Jason Bateman, Charlie Day and Jason Sudeikis as bumbling supervisors plotting against their supervisors. Opening at No. 3 with $21 million was Sony Pictures' family tale Zookeeper.

David Beckham's spokesman said the soccer star's wife Victoria has given birth to a healthy baby girl Sunday.

The Beckhams, who married in 1999, already have three boys: Brooklyn, 11, Romeo, 8, and Cruz, 5.

The family have yet to announce a name for the little girl, who was born the morning after Beckham scored directly from a corner kick to give the Los Angeles Galaxy a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Fire.

Take orders from the kids before the food goes in the oven and you minimize potential tableside protests. By changing toppings every few inches, this faster-than-Domino's version becomes a meal kids and adults can get excited about. Why not just order takeout? Because you're giving them a wholesome, healthy version of their favourite.

Ingredients:

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 sprinkle flour
- 1 12-to-16-ounce ball prepared pizza dough
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 large zucchini, shredded
- Salt and pepper
- 1 cup marinara sauce
- 1 ball fresh mozzarella, sliced into thin rounds

Preparation:

- 1 Preheat oven to 400 degrees F.
- 2 Brush half of the olive oil onto a large baking sheet and sprinkle it with flour.

- 3 Stretch the pizza dough into a 15-by-8-inch rectangle.

- 4 Sauté the onion and zucchini in the remaining olive oil until softened. Season with the salt and pepper.

- 5 Top part of the dough with the marinara sauce and fresh mozzarella, and part of it with your zucchini topping.

- 6 Bake pie until crust has browned and the cheese has melted, 25 to 30 minutes. Slice and serve.

#2. Sliders

► From Time for Dinner.

Buy 1 pound of ground turkey; look for the more flavourful dark meat or a blend of dark and white. Other ground meats — lamb, pork, beef — are also delicious in this recipe.

Preparation:

- 1 Preheat oven to 450 degrees F. Sauté a handful of finely chopped red onion in olive oil.
- 2 In a large bowl, combine the onion with the meat. Add salt and pepper to taste.

- 3 Add 1 tablespoon of chopped fresh thyme and 2 tablespoons of Dijon mustard. Combine well with a fork.

- 4 Form the mixture into small, flat patties. Bake them on a baking sheet until sizzling, 10 to 12 minutes.

- 5 Serve open-faced on split rolls with lettuce and cranberry relish (or, more likely, ketchup).

#3. Masterful Mac 'n' Cheese

4 portions
Prep time:

Total time:
35 min

► From The Sneaky Chef by Missy Chase Lapine

Preparation:

- 1 Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Butter a 9-inch square baking pan.
- 2 Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil over high heat. Add the macaroni and cook according to the package directions, until firm and slightly undercooked. Drain and set aside.

- 3 In a large bowl, whisk the milk with the White Puree and salt. (If using eggs, whisk them in with the milk mixture.)

- 4 Put half of the macaroni into the baking pan and

Ingredients :

- 1/2 pound macaroni (preferably whole wheat blend)
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1/4 to 1/2 cup White Puree (see below)
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups grated low-fat Colby or cheddar cheese
- Optional Extra boost: 2 large eggs top with half the cheddar (or colby) cheese. Next, layer with the rest of the macaroni, and then pour the milk mixture over the top, finishing with the last of the cheese on top.

White Puree

- 2 cups cauliflower florets
- 2 small to medium zucchini, peeled and roughly chopped
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 3-4 tablespoons water, if necessary

- Steam cauliflower in a vegetable steamer over 2 inches of water, using a tightly-covered pot, for about 10 to 12 minutes.
- While waiting for the cauliflower, pulse raw peeled zucchini with lemon juice only. Drain cooked cauliflower. Working in batches if necessary, add it to pulsed zucchini in bowl of food processor with two tablespoons of water. Puree until smooth. Stop occasionally and push contents from the top to the bottom. If necessary, add rest of the water to make smooth puree.

- Makes about 2 cups of puree. Double recipe if you want to store even more, which can be done in the refrigerator for up to 3 days, or freeze 1/4 cup portions in sealed plastic bags or the small plastic containers.

A unique salad combo

► Combining corn, tomato and melon may sound a little strange, but — when done right — it can be delicious ► The flavours balance each other

For Nate Appleman, a great salad is about creating balance. "That balance changes throughout the year and usually depends on what is in season and the weather outside," said Appleman, a star of Food Network's The Next Iron Chef and chef for Chipotle Mexican Grill.

His inspiration starts when shopping. "I pick one central ingredient and build from there, keeping in mind a balance of crisp, sweet, salty, and sour," he said.

Here he offers a salad of tomatoes, raw corn and cantaloupe dressed with a jalapeno vinaigrette.

Imagine if 50 words on Facebook could turn into the Canadian wilderness trip of a lifetime.

Imagine no more. In honour of Parks Canada's 100th birthday, the Canadian Parks and Wilderness Society (CPAWS) has launched the Parks Dream Contest: What's on your Bucket List?

"We launched the contest to help Canadians learn about the amazing opportunities that are offered in our National Parks," says Holly Postelthwaite, national PR coordinator for CPAWS.

"We are really trying to reach the young, urban Facebook crowd, and make them realize the amazing experiences that are waiting for them in Canada's wilderness."

You certainly don't have to be young or urban to enter — but you do need to be on Facebook.

"We wanted to make it fun, easy and simple," Postelthwaite enthuses. "You just sign in with your Facebook account, and then in 50 words or less, share a dream experience you wish to have — or have already had — in one of Canada's National Parks."

I recently went to a Norwex party and was wondering if you had an opinion about Norwex microfiber cloths? Laurel of Coquitlam, B.C.

QUEEN OF GREEN

LINDSAY COULTER
GREEN@METRONews.CA

There is an up- and downside to microfiber cloth products.

The upside: they only need water to clean streaks, smudges, dirt and grime on glass, mirrors and stainless steel surfaces.

They are also easily washed and reused.

Good quality cloths last several years.

The downside: they are made from petrochemicals.

The polyester and

That's what makes them so good at lifting dirt, grease and dust without cleaning chemicals.

Problem is, they are made from a nonrenewable resource and do not biodegrade.

I don't believe they are recyclable either.

► In this recent photo a group of about 20 women attend a class on extreme coupon cutting in Boise, Idaho.

Extreme coupon cutters spreading the good word

The women sat expectantly as Monica Knight told them she once routinely spent $600 US a month on groceries for her family of four. Breaking into a broad smile, Knight says that figure has been reduced to only $100 to $150 a month.

And now the dental hygienist and mother of two is about to tell them her secret.

The women lean forward in their seats. They're the latest disciples of extreme couponing; women who carry pictures of their overflowing pantries on their cellphones; savvy shoppers who will spend hours flipping through newspaper and magazine advertisements in search of their bargains, and homemakers who have pinched pennies to put food on the table during the recession and need the extra help.

Most have watched the television series Extreme Couponing, which debuted on TLC in April and follows shoppers whose intense devotion to finding bargains can whittle a $555.44 grocery store bill down to $5.97, to cite one extreme example.

Heather Border, a 36-year-old mother of four in rural Idaho, is a new to the extreme coupon phenomenon. But she was hooked a few weeks ago, after coupons and store deals brought her $180 grocery bill down to $40.

"I was feeling a little conspicuous because people were staring at me," Border said. "Then, I felt a rush."

She was among about 20 women who attended an extreme coupon class on a recent Saturday in Boise. The three-hour course was taught by Knight and her business partner, Cathy Yoder. They own the extreme couponing blog, Fabulously Frugal.

The women oohed and awed as Knight pulled out the fat binder of coupons that saves her 50 per cent to 90 per cent on every grocery bill. She showed off pictures of the stockpile of food at her home, where 46 boxes of cereal are stowed in her children's bedroom closet and packages of breakfast drink mix are kept under a bed. In their class, Yoder and Knight warn against some of the practices that have given extreme coupon cutters like themselves a bad rap.

They instruct their students to be kind to their cashiers. They encourage them to stockpile food to help their families, but caution against "hoarding" or clearing shelves of items that their families don't need or won't use.

Man of action has Heaps of 'passion'

► Still going strong at 69, entrepreneur Frank Heaps has had his hand in beer, vodka and property development

TURNING POINT

TERESA KRUIZE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

"I'm not good at sitting on beaches," Frank Heaps tells me from his Toronto office. "I'm going to develop them."

I learn that they are not idle words. Frank Heaps is a man of action and at the age of 69, his entrepreneurial spirit is still driving him forward.

Heaps pioneered the micro-brewing craze in Canada when he started Upper Canada Brewing Company in 1984.

"I quit my job, put a mortgage on the family home, wrote a business plan, raised capital and then struggled like hell for five years until it caught fire."

Heaps sold the successful brewery 10 years later and thought about retirement.

"I tried watercolour, golf, bagpipe lessons, pottery classes — nothing appealed to me."

It was back to the beach and Heaps began developing a waterfront property

► Among other things, Frank Heaps is the current president of Iceberg Vodka in Canada.

Heaps of advice

Frank Heaps on starting a new business

- Find something you're passionate about.
- Check out the competition.

- Do your research. Then write a spectacular business plan.
- Demonstrate to yourself and other people that you know what you're talking about.
- Get ready for a challenging ride.

in St. Lucia. He is also the current president of Iceberg Vodka in Canada.

"You've got to have passion. You also have to motivate yourself because if you can't do that, you're not going to motivate the people around you."

Beer, vodka and offshore property development. I can hardly wait to see what Frank Heaps does next.

It's July already; Do you have a job?

▶ Youth-focused centres help unemployed battle the summer job blues ▶ Plenty of opportunities there for the taking School's out, summer's here and the living should be easy. But for some young people there's a perplexing reality that gnaws at the pit of their stomachs — they're jobless, and it's already July.

Laura McEwan is one of those desperately seeking summer employment.

The 17-year-old has been hunting for over a month but has been turned away by employers who say they've already completed their summer hiring or have an abundance of more experienced applicants.

"It's really frustrating not knowing where to go from here and to keep trying to stay positive," said McEwan.

The warmer months can come to resemble a ticking time bomb for those who haven't been able to lock down a summer gig. The latest youth employment numbers don't offer much solace — despite the overall unemployment rate falling to its lowest level in May, the jobless rate for those aged 15 to 24 was 13.9 per cent.

Nonetheless, a few youth-centric organizations are trying to ease the job anxiety.

Youth Employment Services is where McEwan sought help. The Toronto-based non-profit offers job counselling, training and work placement opportunities as well as a special summer job service.

The organization's key

▶ University of British Columbia career educator Angela Pau gives a student feedback on their resumé and cover letter at a resumé clinic.

If all else fails ...

▶ If a young person just isn't able to land a job this summer, the University of British Columbia's Career Services office has some advice.

▶ "Create great professional stories," said John Horn, the centre's associate director of career development.

▶ Whether it's a volunteer experience, or a travel opportunity, Horn advises developing a collection of narratives that help build credibility as a well-rounded professional.

▶ Those stories can find a place on a resumé or in a job interview and could help rank one applicant higher than another.

pointer when it comes to summer employment? Start early.

"A young person has to be very dedicated. They should be looking for their job back in May. A lot of people don't think of doing that," said president Nancy Schaefer.

"The common complaint is 'where's the job?'"

Schaefer explained that many youth who use employment assistance services quickly learn just how proactive they need to be when it comes to the job hunt. Many employers advertise well before April and there are even those that recruit in late fall.

But for those late bloomers still hoping for work this summer, Schaefer offers some encouragement.

"We would never tell a young person that it's hopeless," she said, adding that those who aren't picky can typically find some sort of short-term seasonal work if they look hard enough.

For those with a certain amount of drive, the organization even helps young entrepreneurs start their own summer business.

"Young people don't know that there are services available in their communities," said Schaefer.

"If they've taken that step to reach out and get help, then we reward them."

Calgary's Youth Employment Centre offers similar services and has already dealt with many lamenting a lack of desirable employment — a complaint that's countered with the argument that "any job is a good job."

"It gives you skills, transferable skills that you can use in any workplace," said Leita Blasetti, the centre's community relations liaison, who adds that youth could enrich their experience by volunteering or taking on extra responsibility.

"Make the most of it, get a good reference and a good experience out of it." While helping youth target their resumes and polish their interview style, the centre also reminds young people that jobs outside their target area could end up being a great experience.

"They may not get the ideal job," said Blasetti. "But that's why you have summer jobs, so you can try something out."

► Always make sure to check your emails for spelling mistakes. Heck, use a magnifying glass if you need it.

Don't let your thumbs get in the way of a bright career

► Watch your email etiquette, career experts warn

DREW HINSHAW
METRO WORLD NEWS
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

In the age of auto-spell check, it's tempting to thumb out double-time memos with no regard for the art of spelling. Still, career counsellors warn, your lack of SMS politeness could carry a cost.

"People are starting to move away from emails and are losing the art of putting together a complete couple of sentences," career coach Sue Thompson bemoans.

"But you need to consider to whom are you writing," she adds.

"It's all about building rapport," concurs Shirin Khamisa, founder of Careers By Design.

If your emails are responded to with snappish, unpunctuated replies — no "Hey, how are you," no "Nice to hear from you" —

Get to the point

Don't get so lost in digital decorum that you never get to the point, cautions Shirin Khamisa, founder of Careers By Design. "Be very clear about action steps," she advises. "Keep those in the top of the email so they don't get lost. Put them in the subject line. Present things the way you'd want them presented to you."

Put a face to a name

If a picture's worth 1,000 words, then a low-resolution headshot can't hurt, Khamisa offers. "Attach a small photo in your signature," she says. "The next time you meet, you'll notice a difference in how you're received."

then you might, she suggests, keep your correspondence curt.

"But if it's a person who has a more personal touch, then I would reciprocate," she adds.

"Those niceties are very important in building relationships, even online — and especially online — because we need that glue to hold us together."

Older workers, Thompson notes, can be made uncomfortable by an overload of web 3.0 abbreviations.

"Baby boomers are going to expect a fairly concise, but formal email," she says. And they'll likely place a greater importance on spelling, she adds.

"Some people will really consider your spelling, whether you know the difference between your and you're and its and it's," she says.

"Just respect the person to whom you're writing. That's what etiquette is."

Frenchman takes yellow jersey after crash-filled 9th stage

Spain's Luis Leon Sanchez won the ninth stage of the Tour de France on a wild day of crashes while France's Thomas Voeckler finished second to take the overall lead from Norway's Thor Hushovd.

Among those caught in the mayhem was defending champion Alberto Contador, who overcame another crash, banging his troublesome right knee after an early spill. Kazakh rider Alexandre Vinokourov, 37, ended his Tour de France career in dramatic fashion, bowing out of the race after breaking his right thigh in a high-speed crash during a descent yesterday.

► Manager commends club's 'resiliency' ► Toronto 2 games below .500 ahead of all-star break

Three days after hitting their low point of the season, the Toronto Blue Jays are flying high going into the all-star break.

Jose Bautista's two-run double and six strong innings from Brett Cecil led Toronto to a 7-1 win over the Cleveland Indians yesterday. The Blue Jays took the last three games of the series after suffering a crushing 5-4 defeat in the opener on Thursday in which they couldn't hold a four-run lead and lost on Travis Hafner's walkoff grand slam.

Blue Jays pitcher Ricky Romero is headed to baseball's all-star game.

► The left-hander was named as a replacement for Jon Lester of the Red Sox.

Farrell isn't surprised his team rebounded from a loss that would have sent many clubs into a tailspin.

"We do bounce back," he said. "We have the ability to put behind us what the previous day was, whether it was positive or negative. It speaks to the resiliency of this team and the attitude they carry onto the field."

The Blue Jays, who had 48 hits in the series, out-slugged the Indians for an 11-7 win Friday. All-star Jose Bautista's 10th-inning home run gave Toronto a 5-4 victory Saturday and a five-run third inning, highlighted by rookie Eric Thames' two-run homer, sparked yesterday's win.

"We played very well this series with the exception of Game 1 and what took place late," Farrell said.

Cecil (2-4) gave up one unearned run over six innings for his first win in three starts since being recalled from the minors June 30. The left-hander allowed six hits and walked three. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Franchitti wins Toronto Indy

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dario Franchitti survived a chaotic race to win his third Honda Indy Toronto title yesterday.

The Scottish driver held off Graham Rahal on a late restart, then beat teammate Scott Dixon on the 1.75-mile temporary street course while Ryan Hunter-Reay finished third.

Franchitti also won the event in 2009 and 1999 and increased his lead atop the IZOD IndyCar points standings to 353, 55 more than rival Will Power. It was Franchitti's 30th career win.

Franchitti got a lucky break when his collision with Power knocked the defending champion out of contention on the race's 25th anniversary.
